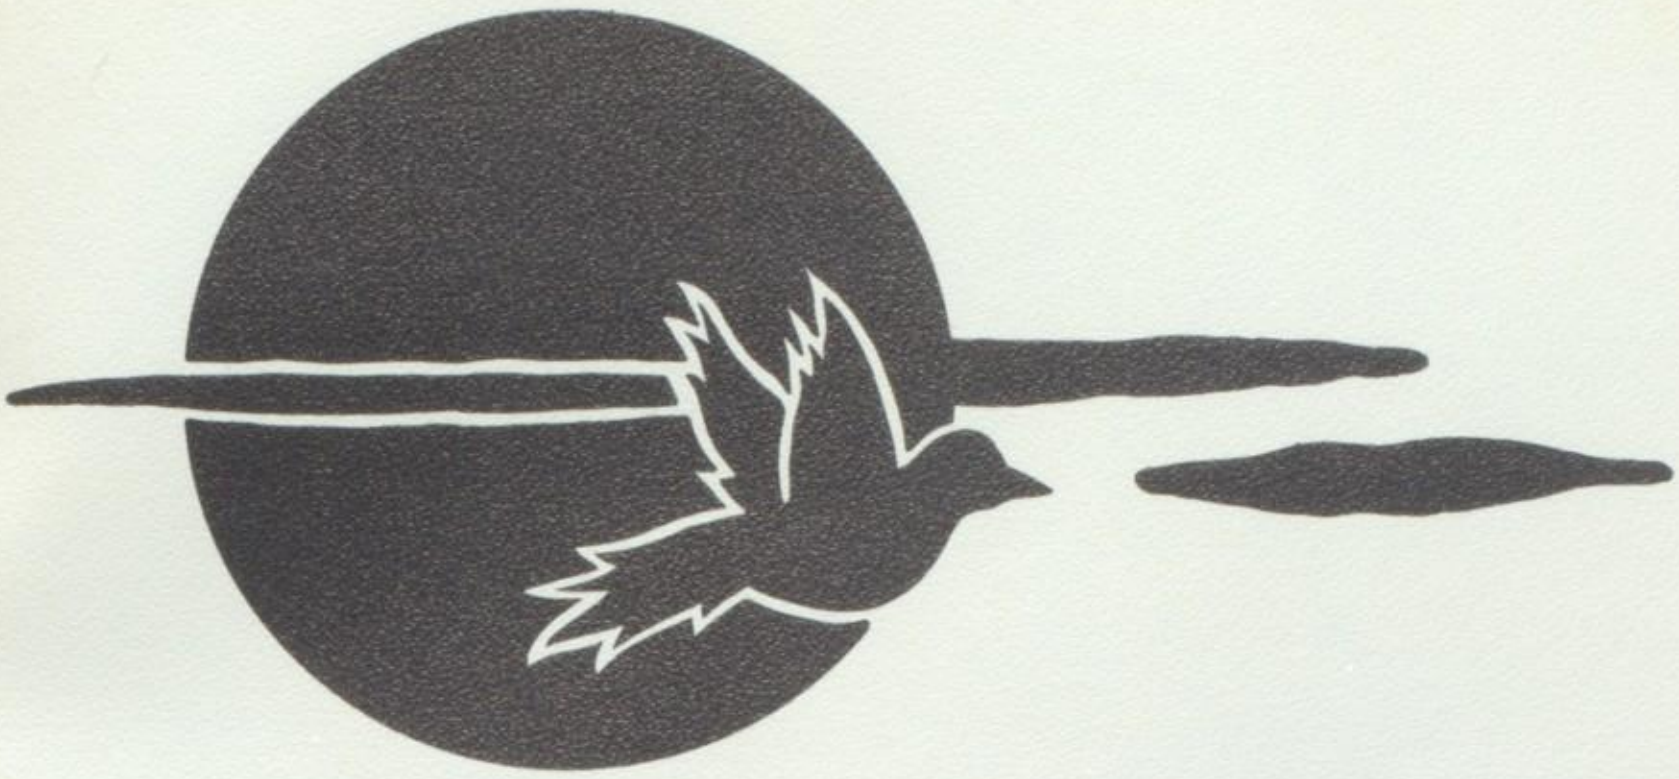
...we have taken wing



But most of all it's me that has changed, and yet still I'm the same
That's me at the weddings, that's me at the graves dressed like the people who once looked so grownup and brave
I look in the mirror through the eyes of the child that was me
I see willows bending, the season is spring
And the silver blue sailing birds fly with sun on their wings
Secret Gardens of the Heart
Where the seasons change forever
I see you shining through the night
In the ice and snow of winter

For the wisdom of his unique brand of inspirational humor, which has reached, moved, and led to the improvement of each member of our class

For his unfailing sense of fairness and trust, in helping us to determine the extent of our individual progress

For his unselfish sacrifice of personal time in attending so many of our extracurricular functions and in learning to know each of us in our many endeavors outside of the classrooms

For his knowledge and talents in coaching and assisting in cross country and golf

For two decades of total dedication and innovative approaches in the experiment oriented Earth Science programs, blending easy informality with stern expectancy of achievement

For all he has meant to us and done for us in making the transition with our class from Middle School to High School in 1970 and in setting a challenging and rewarding pace by his daily example

We, the Class of 1974, proudly dedicate our yearbook to

NANCY HEIMRICH

The train of life is long,
As long as the endless span of time.
Its golden rays transcend the depths of the souls
Of all human beings,
Blinding them for but an instant.
But in that instant,
That mere fragment of the endless train of life,
A change was made
This change caused sorrow, yet
Taught at the same time.
The train of life made a stop
And picked up a young, solitary passenger.
So unexpected and so unfair,
So wrong and so unnecessary . . .

This passenger will never see the days . . .

★ The most valuable gift you can give another is a good example. ★ The man who gets ahead is the one who does more than is necessary — and keeps on doing it. ★ You never get a second chance to make a good first impression. ★ A man rarely succeeds at anything unless he has fun doing it. ★ The best way to forget your own problem is to help someone solve his. ★ Temper is what gets most of us into trouble. Pride is what keeps us there. ★ The trouble with people who talk too fast is that they often say something they haven't thought of yet. ★ Men do not stumble over mountains, but over molehills. ★
